

Early Sexualization is a "Pattern of Pedophiles"

Does sex education foster self-confidence? Without public debate, the new curricula in Western nations is furthering the early sexualization of children with high pressure. But warning voices point out, that early sex education of children is THE "pattern of pedophiles"...

Without public debate, the new curricula in Western nations is furthering the early sexualization of children with high pressure. It is reasoned that early sexual education supposedly promotes children's self-confidence and significantly prevents sexual abuse. Dr. Raphael Bonelli, specialist in psychiatry, neurology and psychotherapeutical medicine, sees the matter differently. In his eyes, early sexualization of children is THE "pattern of pedophiles". Stemming from his therapy of victims of abuse as well as offenders, he reports that sexual acts against minors ultimately always start with "the offender first supporting the involved child's knowledge and awakening an unusual, age-inappropriate interest in sexuality". Whoever keeps of furthering early sexualization despite such warning voices, looks suspicious of following the interests of pedophiles.
