This documentary about the Goldman-Sachs network demonstrates how politics are infiltrated by the financial elite and how the entire world is driven into financial ruin for the benefit of a few money barons.

si. Already on November 13th 2012 the German Tv-channel „ZDF“ aired a highly revealing and enlightening program with the alarming title » Goldman Sachs - The Bank That Rules the World«.

But what has happened since then? In summary: nothing at all.

Viewers of kla.tv are wondering why.

The answer seems to be simple: As long as dramatic truths are broadcasted in the context of an entertainment show, the public is amused and laughs, but there are no reactions beyond that.

In serious hope of an intervention by the prosecution authorities, one of our viewers sent in a complaint, based on the data broadcasted 2012 by ZDF Tv.

Quite obviously the issue is not a conspiracy theory, but clearly it is a matter of facts about a real conspiracy.

No longer should financial or power interests stand above the good of the people. No longer should the entire world be driven into financial ruin in favor of a few power-hungry tycoons.

But see for yourself what kind of sinister network was already revealed in 2012.

The legitimate question arises: why have neither public prosecution authorities, nor offices for the protection of the constitution or the state become active so far?

Are they also part of this ruinous network?

„News from the asylum - November 13th, 2012 – the banana republic“ aired by the German TV channel ZDF.

When Barack Obama was re-elected, many people hoped that maybe a new era had begun, where after all Big Money would not be ruling.

After all Wall Street, the financial industry and the banks had supported Mitt Romney, investing many billions in his campaign. Nonetheless, as if by magic, it was Obama who ascended to the throne.

Before you give rise to false hopes, this documentary should prove that there is no reason for optimism, because for a bank like Goldman Sachs it really does not matter who currently is playing the role of the American president.

Why is this? Quite simply, the reason is Goldman Sachs has enough players within their network.

Goldman Sachs has always been a great winner in times of crisis, able over and over again to show multibillion quarterly profits.

The US head of Goldman Sachs, Lloyd Blankfein grew up in the Bronx and therefore he understands quite well how to outmaneuver others.

Head of the German Goldman Sachs branch is Alexander Dibelius and chairman of the international business branch of Goldman Sachs is the Irishman Peter Sutherland, a former EU commissioner and member of the Trilateral Commission, which is a small, private, political consulting group in Washington.

The 300 – 400 members of the Trilateral Commission are very powerful people such as Lucas Papademos, the former Greek interim head of state, or until recently, also the Italian Prime Minister Mario Monti.

Beyond that, what connects Monti and Papademos? Would you believe it? Both used to work for Goldman Sachs.

Moreover, also Paul Wolfowitz is a member of the Trilateral Commission. Paul Wolfowitz used to be the president of the World Bank, but then he had to resign from his position on account of a well paid job deal that favored his girlfriend.

Robert Zoellick became his successor. And where was he previously? Right – with Goldman Sachs. But Zoellick should not be confused with the chairman of the German bishops' conference, Robert Zollitsch, who is also an integral part of this network.

Peter Sutherland was not only chairman of the board of Goldman Sachs and the Trilateral Commission, but he was also a consultant for the „Administration of the Patrimony of the Apostolic See“ headquartered in Rome, where Robert Zollitsch may also be found.

However, Goldman Sachs has many more interesting connections, e.g. Petros Christodoulou who became head of the Greek debt agency; he also worked for Goldman Sachs And Charles Henri de Croisset who was with Goldman Sachs for seven years and subsequently monitored the French Financial Markets.

Also Philip D. Murphy, with Goldman Sachs for 23 Years, who following this became US ambassador in Berlin. Philip D. Murphy was also a member of the Atlantic Bridge Association.

The Atlantic Bridge is a German-American network of elites. Members are politicians, financial sharks and journalists, acting jointly as a think tank.

These people also take care of the future political leaders with their 'Young-Leadership' promotional programs. Persons who profited from the Atlantic Bridge are for example: Cem Özdemir, currently co-chairman of the German political party „Alliance '90/The Greens“. Or Julia Klöckner of the CDU, the „Christian Democratic Union“ of Germany.

But also Christian Wulff, former President of Germany and Silvana Koch-Mehrin, a German politician and former Member of the European Parliament have been promoted by the Atlantic Bridge.

Further members of the Atlantic Bridge are the head of Goldman Sachs Germany, Alexander Dibelius and chancellor Angela Merkel, who in turn is advised directly by Alexander Dibelius.

And here we find Robert Rubin. He used to be Bill Clinton's minister of finance. Where did he come from? Right, Goldman Sachs. What did Robert Rubin do afterwards?

He advised Timothy Geithner, in 2012 US secretary of treasury and former head of the "Federal Reserve Bank Of New York".

However, Geithner was in office only until January 2013. As Geithner himself never was an associate of Goldman Sachs, as if by chance, he had a very close collaborator – Mark Patterson.

Where did Mark Patterson come from? He came from Goldman Sachs.

Apart from that, Timothy Geithner was also a member of the Trilateral Commission and a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

The Council on Foreign Relations is one of the most powerful think tanks worldwide. There are 3.000 – 4.000 really powerful masterminds who deliberately design the future of the world in their meetings.

Who pays them all – where does the money for the Council come from? Among others, it comes from Goldman Sachs.

In 2012 also Henry Paulson was a member of the Council of Foreign Relations. Prior to this he was minister of finance for George W. Bush. And before this, he was the top director of Goldman Sachs.

Therefore Paulson was well connected with E. Gerald Corrigan. Corrigan was the head of the Federal Reserve Bank before he moved to Goldman Sachs. At the same time he was a member of the Council on Foreign Relations and a member of the Group of Thirty.

The Group of Thirty is a high end club of the financial elite to whom Corrigan belongs.

Who else can we find in the Group Of Thirty? Mario Draghi. Mario Draghi too comes from Goldman Sachs. Subsequently he became head of the European Central Bank (ECB).

Also the German Otmar Issing, a long time chief economist and consultant for chancellor Merkel used to work for the ECB. After this, Otmar Issing provided consulting to Goldman Sachs.

And therefore Issing is connected with Jean-Claude Trichet, Draghi's predecessor.

Trichet was also a member of the Group of Thirty as well as of the Trilateral Commission.

That's why he knows Lucas Papademos as well as Mario Monti. Here everybody knows everybody. Also Robert Zoellick and a number of other well-known political persons could be identified as members of the Trilateral Commission and the Group of Thirty.

If politics are infiltrated to such an extent by the financial elite, one should not wonder when nations are not governed to their advantage, but instead in favor of ruthlessly rampant speculators and business leaders.

In view of the continuous losses in national wealth, running in the billions, caused by such big speculators, from the perspective of a citizen, this must be considered as an ongoing serious major crime.

But which authority will put an end to such parasites to the people, if there is no Prosecution Office, State Protection Office or a higher court that would be ready to do the job?

Absolute transparency must be established!

The people have a right to know, which one of their politicians is part of which board of directors and who is in a business relation with whom.

Ongoing capital offences like major financial crimes, prejudice or high-grade conflicts of interest seem to be just the tip of an iceberg.
